People in wheelchairs, people with crutches, elders, families with strollers, etc. It is estimated that the lack of accessibility affects at least 15% of quebecers, directly or indirectly.

Even today, because of a lack of awareness and information, many public places and especially businesses remain inaccessible to these people. Quite often, a simple step or a steep slope is enough to keep them stuck at the door.

As a business owner, you have a key role to play in the social inclusion of these citizens!

"I broke my coccyx and I lost a lot of autonomy for a while. Before, I wondered 'How can I get to that place?' And while I was healing it was 'Can I get to that place?'"
— Érika

"We don't realize it in everyday life, no more than the fact that he's a redhead! One day we all gathered in a restaurant, he arrived twenty minutes late because he didn't find a parking spot and in addition there were two steps to get inside the restaurant... It's only in these moments that you realize, because of accessibility issues, that your brother is handicapped." — Constance
